It's hard out there lately. Bad news at every turn. Ready for something cheerful? How about strapping a rainbow to your wrist. The Rainbow Watch provides an ever changing crystal display as the hours pass. It's new in this country and European Watch Group recently sent me the Extravaganza Crystal Gamma (EX44-SW-ga) so I could try it out for myself. The watch has a white snake leather strap and this version has a stainless steel case decorated with 293 single set Swarovski crystals. The movement is automatic and the watch is solid and substantial on the wrist. But of course the best part is the color display, slow subtle gradient shifts of color are determined by the minute hand which brings a slow swoop of color that changes the three colored areas of the face. The crystal watch is a new model that hasn't been released yet but Jewelry Television has a couple of other cool versions which are currently available. The crystal version can also be ordered customized with white gold case and also with real diamonds or other precious stones. The display is far more subtle than it looks in the website pictures so I snapped my own of the watch which is shown at right. This is one fun watch and this crystal version is according to distributor European Watch Group, this one isn't for sale in the U.S. yet making it a truly unusual piece to own.

I'm giving away this watch at random to anyone who leaves a comment below. Just leave a confirmed comment telling me why you need a rainbow on your wrist.
